

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display device having a substrate, and a display area and a peripheral area being formed on the substrate. A signal line is extended from the display area to the peripheral area on the substrate, and the signal line at the peripheral area is covered with a first insulating film, a semiconductor layer, and a second insulating film in this order.